

KILLED ON THE "L."

Uncertain Whether Micerowsky Fell or Was Thrown Off.

Road Officials Believe the Story of Accident.

The Man Was Trying, They Say, to Board a Moving Train.

CORONER Rooney, of Brooklyn, is to-day making an investigation as to whether Alphonse Micerowsky's death by falling from a Union Elevated Railroad train to the street last night was attributable to murder or accident.

The Elevated Railroad officials unite in saying that it was Micerowsky's fault that he was dashed to death on the cobbles under the iron structure; but from Conductor Kelly's statement it appears that the unfortunate man could have been saved from his awful fate—and by Kelly himself.

Kelly's report to General Manager Martin says:

"The man got on the train at Broadway and Myrtle Avenue. He got off at Lorimer street, and just as the train started and the gates were closed he rushed forward to get on the train again. He placed his foot on the platform.

"The train was going out of the station at a fast rate. Before I could catch hold of him he was wedged in between the railing of the rear end of the platform and the car, loosened his hold and dropped into the street.

"Col. Martin added: "I understand, but do not know certainly, that Micerowsky had been drinking. Sup't Edwards says that Micerowsky got off at Lorimer street by mistake."

He had walked down the platform a short distance when he discovered his error and turned back to get on the train again.

The accident occurred, he is sure, just as Kelly says."

"Couldn't Kelly have opened the gate when he saw the man hanging on and his danger of being crushed to death between the train and the platform railing or falling into the street?"

"No! It all happened too quickly. Lorimer street is a dead end; there is a long platform, and the trains attain a maximum speed before they clear it."

"There are evidences of a terrible struggle in the man's body. You picked up poor Micerowsky's body. At the end of the night form? That fact Kelly points to as proof that he did not allow the man to fall into the platform railing of late, which was the favorite spot of highwaymen, when the stages ran to Leadville.

Micerowsky died in the ambulance on his way to the Eastern Hospital, and so far as we know there were no other eyewitnesses except Kelly.

"Kelly did not even stop the train, but contented himself with making a report that a man boarded his train while in motion and fell into the street. The unlighted gas was turned on full force, and a bottle full of whisky was found in the room.

A MORNING World reporter learned that Micerowsky was a member of the Knights of Columbus, and that the party had been to Gilmorewood and were on their way home when their brother met death.

Sup't Edwards overheard the remark and said: "Oh, yes, I believe there was a man who died, but he doesn't know anything."

Micerowsky's sisters called at the Eastern

Hospital this morning. They cannot speak English.

Through an interpreter they said they did not know that he got off on the train.

They wanted their brother's body, but Dr. W. A. White was performing an autopsy on it.

He said there was a compound fracture of the skull, which was sufficient to produce death.

The examination of the internal organs had not been completed.

"THE" ALLEN OUT OF DANGER.

His Temperate Habits Saved His Life Again.

Dr. Denlin this morning pronounced "The" Allen out of danger.

At his boarding-house, 246 West Forty-second street, the temperate man declared that a stout man was not there, but the famous Eighth Ward dive-keeper had received a dozen calls from friends and relatives.

His wife, who came into town from Long Island, is at his bedside, and all the brothers spend much time with him.

Carraro is still a prisoner-patient at St. Vincent's, his head swathed in bandages. The attending physician says he is all right, and will be fit to go to police court in a day or two.

GRUBB IS AN EARLY BIRD.

Coming Home to Fix His Gubernatorial Fences for 1892.

ESPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

TRONTON, N.J., July 13.—Word has been received here that Gen. E. Bird Grubb, United States Minister to Spain, will sail for home about the middle of August.

If the signs are propitious, it is said he will come back to an active part in the Fall campaign in this State.

If the signs are propitious, it is said he will be elected over Senator George T. Woods, Morris, the stated Democratic candidate.

It appears that the unfortunate man could have been saved from his awful fate—and by Kelly himself.

Kelly's report to General Manager Martin says:

"The man got on the train at Broadway and Myrtle Avenue. He got off at Lorimer street, and just as the train started and the gates were closed he rushed forward to get on the train again. He placed his foot on the platform.

"The train was going out of the station at a fast rate. Before I could catch hold of him he was wedged in between the railing of the rear end of the platform and the car, loosened his hold and dropped into the street.

"Col. Martin added: "I understand, but do not know certainly, that Micerowsky had been drinking. Sup't Edwards says that Micerowsky got off at Lorimer street by mistake."

FOUL PLAY AT FAIR PLAY.

Two Men Murdered and Robbed on the Old Leiden Stage Route.

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

FAIR PLAY, Col., July 13.—In a lonely ravine, a few miles from town, two men were killed on Saturday and robbed. The dead men are Andy Petersen and N. O. Anderson.

There are evidences of a terrible struggle in the bodies of the men found near the end of the night form.

That fact Kelly points to as proof that he did not allow the man to fall into the platform railing of late, which was the favorite spot of highwaymen, when the stages ran to Leadville.

Whiskey Gas and a Dead Jack Tar.

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BOSTON, July 13.—Sunday morning H. S. Strook, and Alex. Janzen, gunner, of the flagship Newark, of the white squadron, hired a room in the Hotel Eastern. When called to pay his bill, Strook was found dead and Strook was taken to the hospital in a critical condition. The unlighted gas was turned on full force, and a bottle full of whisky was found in the room.

Thrasored Them Both.

Philip McGuire was held at Essex Market this morning for thrashing last night, Mr. and Mrs. Reilly, with whom he boarded, at 417 East Twelfth street.

Cook Mackinaw Straws 95c., worth $1.50. KSSKEDY'S, 12 Cortlandt st., .

SNEEZED OUT HER TEETH.GOSSIP OF THE STAGE WORLD.

Old Mrs. Parke Was Leaning Out the Window.

Now the Beautiful Omene Is to Sue Koster & Bial.

A Girl Picked Up the False Grinders and Threw 'Em Away.

The Lovely Otero Likely to Return to America.

LOST.—From 344 6th ave., a set of teeth. A suitable reward will be paid if returned to above address.

The number mentioned in the above advertisement is a four-story building, occupied these thirty-two years by John Burke, dealer in house-furnishing goods. He lives in the three floors above the store.

The beautiful Omene has put her case against Koster & Bial in the hands of a lawyer. Yankovic is furiously indignant at the treatment to which he claims that the odalisque has been subjected. "They are afraid of letting another dancer succeed," he said yesterday, "because it might interfere with our money." He approached Miss Mather, who is pocketed elegantly and with no manner. She is a fresh complexioned lady with steel gray hair. She peered at the visitor through steel-bound glass windows, kept steel gray eyes, and kept both hands busily on a steel grating in course of making up.

"You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and I said, 'I'll pay you what it's worth if you'll bring 'em to me.'

"'You see, young man, I was leaning out of the Thalia Theatre window, and very indignant, so I don't know those young women by name, but I recognize one of them anywhere I saw her," said Mrs. Parke sharply, in response to the dancer.

"Well, I suppose and out came my new teeth," she said, "and